High Tariff Gets a Shaking.

The friends of the standpat doctrine came near being thrown in to a panic, in congress, the other day when a measure was offered to relieve from duty the steel used for the rebuilding of San Francisco. So modest a request as that, to relieve the earthquake sufferers from paying a big duty in material for restoring their city, had an alarming effect upon the friends of the inordinate duties.

The alarm was further spread, by a proposition to make it apply to all cities. The way this sad menace to preposterous duties was met, was in getting the California congressmen, to represent that such generous action was not needed. But the proposition came so naturally, since the same thing was done for Chicago, when that city suffered so from fire in 1871, and considering that the steel trust has on hand now, for future delivery, contracts amounting to 7,000,000 tons. This indicates that the market is going to be severely strained, and San Francisco will have serious difficulty in getting structural steel for restoring its business houses.

It seemed amusing, how so sensible a proposition should disturb the equanimity of the standpatters. But the suggestion that the exemption be extended to all cities, was a sputtering bombshell. The circumstances will have its uses in preparing the standpat mind for the day, when not only steel, but many other articles inordinately charged with import duties, will be relieved from the partial pressure that is upon them.

But the question naturally arises that, if duties at this high rate would arrest the development of other portions of the country, that have not been visited by an earthquake, and if the removal of the entire duties might be made for one section, why may not a partial removal be made for all sections. Or why should a big monopoly be given the advantage of a prohibitory tariff by which it could levy upon the country's need, the uttermost profits. These questions are pushed to the front by the San Francisco proposition, even if nothing else comes of it. —State Journal.

Judge Reeves Indorsed.

Resolved by the Democracy of Fairfield county, Ohio, in convention assembled. That we indorse and recommend for the office of Judge in the Second Subdivision of the Seventh Common Pleas Judicial District, the present incumbent, John G. Reeves.

His successful career on the bench, his faithful administration of the duties of the office, his jealous regard for the rights of the people, constitute unanswerable arguments for his re-election. Notwithstanding a Republican majority, secured by a partisan gerrymander, we believe that the intelligent voters of this judicial district, appreciating the importance and necessity of a free untrammelled judiciary, will demand that Judge Reeves shall be his own successor.

Judge Reeves, who was present, responded to a protracted call for a speech. He expressed in eloquent language his appreciation for the kind wishes of his friends and promised to give an impartial administration of his office if he should be selected again.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Thrush, of Washington Township, visited the latter parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Welch, Sunday.

Miss Rose McCourtney, of Athens, and Mrs. Frank Brown, spent Sunday in Columbus with Mr. Brown at Mount Carmel.

Miss Ethel Smith, of Columbus, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Milton Baird.

Pleading.

That fellow Huls is pleading for us to go on saying things about him in this paper. This is about the only notoriety Huls gets, and he is enjoying it. He is like the little dog that was not noticed, and threw itself in front of a man to get kicked, so it would be pitied. His accusations have in every instance been proven false, and the denials will be supported by affidavits if necessary. This settles it, and the "lid is still on," and Huls with his saloon crowd can not shake it off.

The Truth About San Francisco.

PHYSICALLY AND MORALLY San Francisco was built on mud. Much of lower Market street was on made ground—old cans, refuse, muck lifted from the harbor and dumped over behind piles. The City hall was in what was once swamps and later sand lots. Fine roadways had taken the place of creeks or estuaries of the swamps and tide flats. The quaking earth rocked and toppled buildings erected on sponge.

Not owning her own waterworks the city burned when the emergency came under which she must depend upon the equipment and structural conscientiousness of corporation.

Leaving the theologians to quarrel over the proposition that this catastrophe was a venetian visitation of divine wrath, it is a fact that no modern city better deserved the fate of Gomorrah than beautiful San Francisco.

She was notorious for her harboring and laxity toward the social evil—white, black, yellow and brown.

She had more murders per 1000 than any other city in the nation. She was the only big city where in a man could safely kill another in the prize ring, and there had been four such killings.

She was the only city where lottery tickets were peddled from house to house, office to office.

She had one saloon for every 250 citizens, one church for every 2500.

She averaged one suicide a day. She handled over 800 cases of insanity the past 14 months.

She harbored unspeakable Chinese and Japanese infamies that would not be tolerated a day in China or Japan.

She was the haven for every race horse gambler and prize ring tough in the country.

Her conspicuous wickednesses were not only tolerated by the authorities, but practically ignored by the ministers.

When the seismic shock came, the main terror was as to what the vicious elements would do. The city was afraid of itself and all died who could. Men trembled less for the houses and stores than for their women and children, the legitimate prey of the vicious and pestilence, until Funston began to shoot and hang.

On the second day, when the ground shook with more earthquake and the dynamiting of buildings, while the flames threw a curtain of blood red over everything, and volumes of smoke charged up and down the business thoroughfares, the street railway platforms of Market street were covered with men dead drunk—scores of them, vomiting, cursing and howling. They knew the wickedness of the city and thought God was striking it from above and below.

The great majority of San Francisco were as good people as could be found anywhere else on earth. The public conscience was asleep. Good business men winked at one or another species of sin because it meant gain to them. The administration was for politics only and had not yet learned that it is good politics to rely on the good sense, love of justice and decency of the whole people.

The local press was either too cowardly or too neutral, or too directly interested to stir for a moral awakening. Vice ruled while the public conscience slept. But today those who can do right by the city raise their empty, scorched hands and swear they will build anew, with no infamous Chinatown, no regions of professional and assorted vice, no foundation of mud, either physical or moral. —Citizen.

It Is Almost Here

In two weeks the great Ohio State Sunday-school Convention of 1906, towards which Ohio Sunday-school people have been looking for almost a year, will be held at Marietta. It will meet on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 5, 6, 7. Almost fifteen hundred Sunday-school workers will be present from all parts of the State.

The program includes such speakers as Dr. H. M. Hamill, Mrs. M. S. Lamoreaux, Mr. W. C. Pearce, Miss Nannie Lee Frayser, Mr. E. C. Knapp, Rev. R. A. Hadden, of Columbus, will have charge of the Bible Hours of the Convention, and Prof. E. O. Excell, of Chicago, will conduct the Convention music.

A great Sunday School Bazaar or exhibition of modern Sunday School equipment and supplies will be held in connection with the Convention.

Rates from all parts of the State two cents per mile.

For particulars and copy of program send to Dr. Joseph Clark, State Secretary, 79 Ruggery Bldg., Columbus, Ohio.

Mr. Thomas A. Highley and wife, of Decatur, Illinois, are visiting relatives in Logan and vicinity for an indefinite period. Mr. Highley left here for the west about 1870.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Poisonous substances are then absorbed into the blood, instead of being removed from the body daily as nature intended. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills, liver pills. All vegetable.

Obituary.

Mrs. Keziah Funk-Krinn, the daughter of David and Keziah Funk was born on the 11th day of October A. D. 1819. The departed was one of the few ever obliging, patient and obedient children, a joy to every such household and pride of her parents.

On April the 30, 1874, she was joined in holy wedlock to J. Geo. Krinn, of Laurel Township, to which union was born three boys and four girls; four of whom having preceded her to the spirit world, leaving two sons and one daughter to pay their respects in this hour of gloom.

When we say mother "thou art gone" it is truly a sad reflection yet such is a stern truth; in the very outset of her marriage she became mother at once of three dear, motherless little children, who soon became her every thought and care; they being spared to respond at this trying hour; one indeed where the husband and father J. G. Krinn, is again bereaved of that dear help-meet, mother and loving guardian of the household; having departed this life on the 9, day of April 1906; having reached the age of 86 years, 6 months and 2 days.

Keziah Krinn became a fervent member of the old School Baptist some twenty years ago, and gave every token of departing in the fervent faith of her choice and was ready to meet her Savior.

She leaves a husband three children, three step-children, three brothers and six sisters to mourn her departure. Yet we hope our loss is her spiritual gain.

Park Opened.

Olentangy Park and Zoological Garden, Columbus, Ohio, the leading amusement resort of the state, opened for the season of 1906, on Sunday, April 29, extensive additions and improvements have been made for the entertainment of visitors.

Chief among the new attractions is an immense Skating Rink, the largest and finest in the state, also a fine new Dancing Pavilion, complete in every detail. A band of 20 pieces will furnish music in the Dancing Pavilion and another large band will furnish music for the Skating Rink. A fine orchestra will be placed in the theater, in which high class vaudeville will be presented every afternoon and evening, and a band of 40 pieces will give free open air concerts twice daily, so there will be an abundance of music at Olentangy this season.

Other new attractions will be a Scenic Coaster, given a ride of over a half mile, the "Tours of the World," Hereafter, The Temple of Mirth, Egyptian Mystery, and a regular Coney Island Carroussel. All the attractions of last season will be retained, including the figure 8 Toboggan, Ye old mill, Circle Swing, Castle Mystic, Palace of Illusion, Laughing Gallery, Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, Bowling Alley, Boats and Launches, Shooting Gallery, Ball Games, Penny Arcade, Colonnade, and many others.

Prof. Main of Ohio State University, is also installing in the Park a scientific electrical exhibit, including wireless telegraphy, and other late discoveries, which will attract much attention.

The entire Park has been greatly beautified by a force of expert landscape artists, and the whole will be brilliantly illuminated at night, over forty thousand electric lights being used.

THE DOLLAR MARK.

Its Peculiarity in Being Written Before the Figures.

Did it ever strike you as being at all peculiar that we should use the dollar mark ($) before instead of after the figures in expressing the sum of 5, 10, 20 or any other number of dollars? We may say "25 dollars" plain enough for any one to understand, but as soon as we put the expression into figures and characters it is "dollars 25" ($25) instead of 25$, as it should be. Nor is this all that is peculiar in this connection.

In every country which has a written language and a system of coinage the abbreviation for the unit of value precedes the figures. In England the pound mark (£) is used in the same manner that the dollar mark is used in this country, while the same peculiarity is noticeable in Germany, where the abbreviation m. (for mark) appears preceding the number, just as the French abbreviation fr. (for franc) is used in France.

If abbreviations are not used the legend is more apt to be correct. We find that in Mexico they have a "2½ pesos" instead of "p. 2½," as one might expect, and in Newfoundland they have a plain 2 dollar piece. So, too, in France, where the abbreviation is not used, we find such pieces as "10 francs," "20 francs" and "40 francs." In Germany they have a piece marked "X thaler," which is all very plain, but the moment a clerk, bookkeeper or other person makes an entry or jots down a memorandum he tells you that it is a "th. X."

The English pound sign, which is believed to be the oldest monetary abbreviation now in use, is the old initial letter by which the Romans expressed "pounds," just as we use the "lbs." It has been suggested that we use our money abbreviation backward because the Romans in expressing "pounds" always said "libra decem" instead of "decem libra," the first being "pounds ten" and the latter "ten pounds." When their initial letter or character was used it always preceded the figures, thus "£10," instead of the reverse. Thus the whole world has got in the habit of doing these things backward.
